

LEGISLATION FOR THE BRITISH ISLES AVAILABLE FREE ON THE INTERNET

by John Copeland
Version 21.2.2022

Please send any comments or corrections to internetlinkslists@btinternet.com.

There is firstly listed links to websites and then scanned volumes of collections of statutes. For up to date legislation it is best to check the relevant website. The links to collections of statutes are mainly to those provided by Google Books., the Hathi Trust (those with a university name shown) and the Internet Archive.

As far as the scanned volumes are concerned, because of copyright worries, access is not normally available to recent volumes. The access available can differ according to the country from which access is attempted with later volumes often being available in the United States and not elsewhere. However, in recent times some more recent volumes older than 50 years in age have become available in the United Kingdom, as they are subject to UK Crown copyright, which only lasts until 50 years after the end of the year of first publication.

More than one link may be shown, (although once one link has been found, others have not been deliberately looked for) as defects in one copy of a book may not appear in another and, even if the same copy of a book or even scan has been used to provide scans for the different providers, the formats available may differ.

As far as the scanned volumes are concerned, for England & Wales there are initially listed links to the Statutes of the Realm, which aimed to be comprehensive to 1714. Then up to 1801 for Great Britain there are listed separately various series of statutes. These series are not comprehensive, particularly as far as local and private Acts are concerned, and links to some volumes have not been found, so if an Act cannot be found in one series, other series covering the same period should be checked.

From 1801 for the United Kingdom the volumes, whoever the publisher is, are listed in year order and there are listed volumes for all years to 1970.

The series covering the period prior to the Union of England and Scotland in 1707 just relate to England, while those covering the period between that and the Union of Great Britain with Ireland in 1801 only cover Great Britain. Separate lists for links relating to subordinate legislation, to Ireland pre-1801 and Northern Ireland from 1921, Scotland pre-1707 and the Crown Dependencies and for the Commonwealth period follow.

Government website

<http://www.legislation.gov.uk/> This is comprehensive for statutes from 1988. For the United Kingdom it includes some coverage from 1801, becoming more comprehensive the more recent the legislation is. Often it will have the original version and a current or nearly current one. It also includes current Welsh, Scottish & Northern Irish legislation and some earlier British, English (back to 1267), Scottish & Irish legislation. It is comprehensive for statutory instruments from 1987 and has some coverage of earlier secondary legislation. The coverage of older legislation is gradually being increased.

Its search function can only locate titles.

These data have been collected for my forthcoming book: ‘How Language Works in Politics: The Impact of Vague Legislation on Policy’ (University of Bristol Press). Each year from 1900 to 2015 has three folders containing all legislation (.txt), the preambles to all legislation (~pr.txt) and all financial legislation (~Fin.txt). Please note that the legislation is in plain text form and intended for natural language processing (NLP).”

Originally Acts of Parliament only had one title which could be rather long. Gradually from the 1840's Acts started including a "Short Title" by which the Act could be legally referred to. In 1892 an Act was passed with short titles which could be used for some of the earlier Acts and this was re-enacted by the Short Titles Act 1896.

UK legislation is subject to Crown Copyright which expires 50 years after the end of the year of publication and in the meantime, can be used if the Open Government Licence v3.0 is followed or one of the normal exemptions applies. Any commentary will be subject to the normal rules.

The copyright in Irish enactments "vests in the Houses of the Oireachtas." "and shall expire 50 years from the end of the calendar year in which the work was ... made available" but there is also the Oireachtas Open Data PSI Licence for later documents. Government copyright is for the same period and there is a similar licence.
